

First Responders Course Database

The First Responders Course Database provides first responders of all kinds a way to search for specific types of trainings, whether online or in-person, by type of threat, by length of course, and whether the course prepares responders for prevention or for recovery.

Trainings included in the database include federally funded courses through providers located throughout the United States.

Courses are available at awareness, performance, and management levels, and are designed to expand the skills of first responders.

<http://www.public-health.uiowa.edu/edtrac/firstresp/>

Take me to the database!

